

New Frontiers Solutions launches GigaCity Gigabit Internet Service In Hagerstown

New Generation Service Provider Offers Speeds to 1 Gigabit for Business and Residential Users

Date 1/11/2017

HAGERSTOWN-- New Frontiers Solutions announced today that it has begun offering GigaCity Gigabit services in downtown Hagerstown. The company offers business and residential customers 1 Gigabit (1000Mbps) Internet service that is symmetrical (the same speed up and down) to make Hagerstown a true Gigabit community.

“Not only do we deliver 1 Gbps symmetrical speeds to each customer, we deliver it at some of the lowest latency in the area,” said New Frontiers President Clint Wiley. “This makes New Frontiers GigaCity service the most sought-after service for video and music streaming as well as online gaming. We built our network specifically to serve today’s demanding needs. We are directly connected to Netflix and Hulu so that those video streaming services can be accessed without ever having to traverse congested public Internet connections. That means video streams run much better. Not only that, there are NO data caps on our service. We heard loud and clear that local users wanted a better Internet experience and they wanted unlimited service without the fear that their usage will result in higher, unpredictable monthly bills. Businesses benefit too. With fast download and upload speeds, cloud applications work so much better.”

A unique fiber architecture is not the only distinguishing feature of the new GigaCity service. The New Frontiers team is focused on an overall quality experience, including simple pricing with no hidden fees, no data caps, and outstanding customer service. GigaCity subscribers get an amazing Internet connection at an incredible price.

“We offer our customers a choice, said Clint Wiley. We offer freedom from the shackles of data caps and under-performing service. Our goal isn’t just to be the best local provider because being compared to other local providers isn’t a worthy goal. We strive to deliver an experience on par with the Amazons and Apples of the world. We want our customers to value their experience with us.”

New Frontiers GigaCity service is currently available to businesses and residents in select locations downtown. To find out more, please visit <http://hagerstownfiber.com>.
